The professional voice of London general practice

Don't let your NMC registration lapse – important information for nurses and practice managers.

From November 2015 anyone who allows their registration to lapse will need to make an application for readmission to regain access to the registrar. This could take between two and six weeks.

The previous administrative process that allowed a window where for late submissions was accepted without the need to re-register has now been removed.

If documentation and payment are not received on the renewal date, registration will lapse.
