Patient engagement survey

We are asking for practices to share their experience of successfully developing their patient engagement work, including top tips, by completing our patient engagement surveys. These will help shape the delivery of Londonwide LMCs' new patient engagement project.

Practice Manager Alison Dalal from Paddington Green Health Centre's top tip for developing wider patient participation is:

"Consider engaging with local groups that already exist in your practice area. I've found visiting community groups and schools a rich source of feedback. I realise, of course, that practice capacity is an issue, however it could be possible to share visits and information with several practices in the same borough."
