The professional voice of London general practice

Value. Care. Protect.

Our latest video explains how GPs and practice staff are under pressure and asks patients to be considerate when talking to practice team members.

GPs and practice teams have been working tirelessly combating coronavirus for the past year and a half. We know many patients are tired and frustrated by changes in how practices provide care, but It's important to be respectful. GPs are human and are here to help. pic.twitter.com/xiaALlz2dG
