From Mindfulness to Reflection: how to stay healthy in today's NHS

Workshop name Reflective Practice Masterclass for GPs

Target Audience General Practitioners

Duration 4.5 hours

Format Group work

Presenter Dr Clare Gerada

Overview To help individuals to identify both the organisational and psychological barriers to change and personal development. It introduces techniques to enable participants to overcome some of the challenges facing general practitioners and gain insight into the necessary changes that need to be made to their practice in the workplace in order to improve their working lives and their ability to continue to deliver safe, effective and compassionate care.

The programme is aimed at those who face challenges with excessive workload, system changes and expectations from patients, commissioners and the media. It will provide a safe space for sharing concerns and identify needs, and aims to give participants tools and techniques to enable them to move forward and deal with constant changes in general practice and the wider NHS.

Aims

- To create a safe and confidential space where difficulties can be discussed openly
- Support GPs to identify and prioritise the stressors in their working life
- Provide the GPs with alternative ways of thinking that will help them to manage these stresses in their workplace
- Enable GPs to self-reflect, maintain a high level of patient care and look after their own wellbeing, while achieving a better work-life balance

Learning Outcomes

- How to utilise a reflective practice model using practice or personal examples
- Understand one's limitations as a practitioner
- To leave with an understanding of our personal responsibility to identify our stresses; avoid those we can and strengthen ourselves to live with those we cannot avoid.
- To leave with a mini action plan on how to improve your health and wellbeing at work
